Dyfed Archaeological Trust Ltd

Coverage and content of the Historic Environment Record

Scope of information resources

The Dyfed Archaeological Trust’s Historic Environment Record comprises information on all known sites, monuments, features and artefacts of archaeological and/or historical interest in the counties of Carmarthenshire, Ceredigion and Pembrokeshire, ranging in date from the earliest known human habitation in the region up to the period of the Cold War. It also contains information on archaeological work carried out in the region.

The aim is for the Record to be inclusive of subject and period for all terrestrial and maritime archaeology within the region, and for this to be achieved either through its own holdings or through links with related information resources. In practice, the circumstances of the development and resources of the Record mean that coverage is incomplete (see Differential coverage and selective inclusion/omissions below).

Geographical coverage of information resources

Geographically, the Record covers the former county of Dyfed, now the counties of Carmarthenshire, Ceredigion and Pembrokeshire (southwest Wales).

Differential coverage and selective inclusion/omissions
There is a general cut-off date in that no sites later than the Cold War period are currently on the record.

Arrangements for exchanging data
Dyfed Historic Environment Record data is regularly exchanged with organisations maintaining external dependent and/or contributory records. This data exchange takes place under the terms of the Memorandum of Understanding for sharing information under the Strategic Framework for Records Relating to the Historic Environment of Wales. Partners in the data exchange are the four Welsh Historic Environment Records, RCAHMW, Cadw, National Museums and Galleries of Wales, National Trust and the Snowdonia National Park.

Data is occasionally exchanged with university archaeology departments and external archaeological contractors.

All exchanges are governed by data exchange agreements.

IPR issues
Where Intellectual Property Rights are invested in one or more individuals these rights will be respected. The Dyfed Archaeological Trust does not claim any Intellectual Property Rights when not entitled to do so.
